

To the FCC commissioners,

The FCC was created to serve the public interest with respect to the media.

Deregulation of the media by loosening ownership rules does not serve that interest. The commission should not further deregulate the media, but instead should examine ways that an increasing diversity of viewpoints can be fostered.

Your website specifically states that the FCC considers the public's input when developing rules and policies. Please stand by this statement and consider the public's opposition to further media concentration.
